Hearts Aflame

Easter Sunday

Luke 24:13-33

When we look around us at all that is happening in the world and in our lives, we can often respond in confusion. How do we make sense of it? This morning we follow two disciples leaving Jerusalem after an exhausting and confusing week asking the same kinds of questions that we ask. They have a surprise conversation with a familiar stranger who gives them a new perspective and awakens them to new understanding. Could he do the same for us? Could our hearts be set aflame along with theirs?

Discussion Questions:

1. What is going on in the world that concerns you most? What is going on in your life?
2. What are the stories that you've heard to explain everything that's going on? Which story do you believe? Which stories are you tempted to believe?
3. Have you encountered Jesus? What has that looked like? What has set your heart aflame?
4. What's the next step for you? What does going back to Jerusalem look like in your life?
